

PRES. HARDING LAID TO REST

Greatest No Higher Than The Humblest Gather About Tomb

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 10.—His own home folk accorded, simple, final funeral honors to President Warren G. Harding here today. Not with crashing volleys and the wailing notes of "taps" but with the old fashioned, homely ceremonies that might be accorded any leading citizen of Marion, the twenty-ninth president was laid to rest by his fellow townsmen.

It was a home funeral, attended by the home folks of Marion and of Washington and of nearly every state in the Union. The tributes paid today by thousands was a tribute to Harding the citizen and the friend, not to Harding the president.

All the morning the body lay in state in the home of his father, Dr. C. A. T. Harding, on East Center St., a continuous file of people passed thru the house, past the simple bier and out again into the street. Militiamen guided the throngs of citizens, eager to pay their last respects to Warren G. Harding.

In preparation for the funeral all the downtown streets and State st. leading to the cemetery, were freed from motor and street car traffic. Only official cars of President Coolidge's party or those directly connected with the funeral, were permitted on these streets. Yet, at the expressed wish of Mrs. Harding, everybody had a chance to pass thru the house and view the body.

At one o'clock the Harding home was closed to visitors, and at two o'clock the procession of automobiles, lined up for blocks to the East of Dr. Harding's home, began to form.

Every effort was made at the cemetery to give everybody a chance to have a last look at the body. Automobiles, directed by the funeral home, lined up and sent them on their way again. The funeral procession from the home to the cemetery was as follows:

The Rev. C. A. T. Harding, Baptist, and the Rev. and Dr. J. B. McMane, officiating clergymen.

Harding's Last Picture

In Memoriam

As a single mourner, the Nation stood still with bowed head for a brief moment today, in reverent respect for the departed leader. Simultaneously in great cities and tiny hamlets, the length and breadth of the United States, the rush and bustle of daily life was stilled for a brief span. Then, men, women and children stood silent, honoring Warren G. Harding.

In most communities, the period of silence varies from one to five minutes, at the moment that a signal announces that the late President's remains have been laid in the Crypt at Marion. Many places halted at 3 o'clock or at noon. Whatever the hour, the occasion was one in which every citizen of the United States pays his individual respect to the fallen President.

Not only the American people, but all the varied vast and complicated machinery of traffic, commerce and communication and manufacture that has become a part of American life—the hum of telephone and telegraph wires still for a period today, a silence which gave the nation a quiet instant reverence.

In many cities memorial services began automatically at 3:00 o'clock (Central Time) when the interment took place. In Mexia and in many other cities the fitting program of the day was conducted at 10:30 in the morning.

The observance of silence is not confined to the borders of the United States. In every far flung possession or consulate, the same simple act of respect were or will be performed. Ships at sea will still their engines and passengers and crews take part in the national ceremony.

Many business houses in Mexia closed at some hour during the day and quite a few for the memorial service at the Christian church.

Flags are visible at half mast on many buildings in the city and a reverent demeanor assumed by citizens on the street as they contemplate the life, death and burial of the twenty-ninth President of the United States.

FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 10.—France and America joined hands in paying final tribute to President Harding. American ex-soldiers marched to the Place de la Concorde and stood with their faces toward Marion, Ohio, while taps was sounded. Hundreds of American and French civilians stood with bowed heads. Official services were held at an American church. American business was suspended throughout the continent.

ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Impressive memorial services were held for President Harding in Westminster Abbey. The duke and duchess of York represented the king and queen. All other members of the royal family were represented. Flags are at half mast throughout the United Kingdom.

GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—President Ebert, Ambassador Houghton, diplomatic and other notables attended memorial services for President Harding.

CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 10.—Memorial services for President Harding were held in the American embassy in the presence of diplomats, allied generals and the American colony.

MEXIA PRINTERS PAUSE FOR MEMORIAL SERVICE IN CHAPEL OF UNION

Mexia Typographical Union 879 met at the Chapel of the Union in the News Publishing Company at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon, for a fifteen minute memorial service in honor of their deceased brother, President Warren G. Harding, member of Marion local. During the hour, work at both Union shops in the city stopped, members from both taking part. The meeting was presided over by the President of the Local Union, Charles M. Church.

The Twenty-third Psalm was read by Major N. P. Houx, a prayer followed by A. Garland Adair, Editor of The News. Fitting remarks for the occasion were made by W. K. Boyd, President of the News Publishing Company, and De Witt Lamb of the American Printing Company.

Mrs. R. B. Turner has as her guest her little sister, Miss Ardeth Daniels of Austin.

Val Horn was a visitor in Fort Worth Thursday.

One Of First Homes Built In Mexia Burns

The fire alarm sounded this morning about 5 o'clock and the local fire department responded to the Modern Rooms on East Milam street, which was enveloped in flames. Good work of the firemen prevented the fire spreading to adjoining houses nearby. The origin of the fire is said to have been caused from defective wiring. The house represented an old landmark in Mexia, it having been built in 1876 on a spot on Palestine and Sherman streets where the Majestic hotel now stands. During the boom it was moved to its present location to make room for the Majestic. It was built originally by J. A. Arvin and during the boom days was converted into a rooming house. It was owned by Jesse McLendon and occupied by Mr. Harwood. It is learned the latter saved a part of the furniture. The building was insured for $1,000.

Nowlin Post To Go After State Meet Of Legion

The Nowlin Post of the American Legion, held a joint memorial service and business session in the offices of Watkins and Wroe, a local law firm. Post Commander Owen F. Watkins presided at the informal session. Brief tributes to the late leader and commander in chief of the American Legion were offered by Commander Watkins and Comrade A. Garland Adair. The former stressed the beauty of the private life of Warren G. Harding and his desire to make friends rather than enemies. The latter stated that the purpose of memorial services is three fold: first to pay respects due the deceased; second, to seek to extend a hand of condolence to sad loved ones; and third to draw what lessons we may of inspiration to the living.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions of regret to Warren G. Harding and a pledge of patriotic support to the new President now in power.

Following the memorial service, the Post Commander called attention to the State Convention of the American Legion which will be held in Galveston August 28, 29 and 30.

It was moved that delegates be selected for that event and all members urged to attend, if possible. It was pointed out that Mexia has one of the largest posts in all Texas, and is entitled to 25 votes in the convention. Mexia, Nowlin Post has 248 members.

A motion was also passed instructing the delegates to vote as a unit.

Mrs. E. A. Teter, the only lady member of the local post proposed that Mexia go to the convention with the intention of bringing the annual session of 1924 back to Mexia. The suggestion was accepted with enthusiasm and the Post will begin work at once to secure the convention for this place. The last Thursday night in this month, the Post will meet and instruct the delegates on plans and what they will be expected to favor at the state meeting.

The following delegates, subject to change, were appointed:

Owen F. Watkins, Chairman, A. Garland Adair, Vice-Chairman, Mrs. E. A. Teter, E. A. Teter, Dr. Harry A. Porter, Harry A. Maddox, Scott Reed, Z. Rochelle, P. H. Souris, J. H. Kirby, Hugh Hardcastle, J. V. Avara, A. E. Kincheloe, W. M. Schmidt, Johnson, Epperson, Ben Stollenwerck, Adjutant S. B. Warner and Fountain H. Kirby.

Widow And Father Have Hour Alone With Body

MARION, Ohio, August 10.—Marion's best loved citizen, the twenty-ninth president of the United States was laid to rest here this afternoon, the last services starting at 3:00 o'clock.

The funeral of Warren G. Harding, impressive in its simplicity, brought nearly 100,000 people to Marion to pay their last respects to the nation's late chief executive.

No sermon was preached, no bands played, there was neither flashing of sabers, rumble or artillery caissons nor firing of salutes to mark the laying away of the President.

Eight thousand troops were in town but there was no show of armed force at any time during the day.

Crowds that have been coming in for several days were so great that they camped in large numbers at the Fair grounds. Scores of special trains continued to arrive far up into day. The day dawned clear but later the sky became overcast.

Columns of cars moved into Marion three abreast over every highway.

President Coolidge and his party arrived at 12:32. They remained in cars until the hour approached for the last sad services.

At three o'clock the cortege moved through the still, tree shaded streets to the cemetery, between the mighty throng of friends and neighbors. Tears flowed from thousands of eyes as they watched the last procession in which Warren will ever take part in Marion.

Through the opened gates to the cemetery, the procession quietly passed, with only the sobs of loved ones breaking the solemnity of the day. There was no pomp, no brilliant trappings that marked the stately procession. Behind the gray hearse in which the casket was borne came the honorary pall bearers, who were members of the cabinet, Senator Cummins, president pro-tem of the Senate, Speaker Gillett of the House, Calvin Coolidge, now the first citizen of the Republic, present Chief Justice Taft and other members of the Supreme Court, the wives of cabinet officers and a host of other men and women occupying humble places in the government followed these.

Early this morning Mrs. Harding and her husband's aged father began preparations for the ordeal of the day. "My boy! My boy! was his wail as he prepared to follow the son to the mouth of the grave.

At one o'clock this afternoon, the doors to the house were closed. All the world, even Marion, was excluded from the scene until two o'clock, while Mrs. Harding and the aged father took their last look upon the still face. The hour passed all too swiftly for the woman and old man.

When they left the silent room, the other relatives, George T. Harding, Jr., the brother; Mrs. E. E. Remsburg, Abigail Harding and Mrs. Heber Volaw, the sisters, with their families, then were admitted for their farewells.

Softly then, as the hour of three approached, the casket was shut—forever.

The members of the cabinet, President Coolidge and the party that went from Washington to Alaska with Mr. Harding, gathered while the coffin was carried for the last time from the father's house, by the same honor guard of young men of the army and navy and marine corps, who have borne it since leaving the Palace hotel in San Francisco a week ago.

Flowers in profusion are heaped high around the premises of the Harding home.

H. J. Hawk, B. A. Johnson, W. S. Banks, Dr. R. E. Forrester, Wyatt Haytre, Dr. Marion M. Brown, Wright Kincheloe, W. M. Schmidt, Johnson, Epperson, Ben Stollenwerck, Adjutant S. B. Warner and Fountain H. Kirby.

Large Crowd At Memorial Here Today

A crowd that taxed the First Christian church this morning at 10:30 assembled in a memorial service, honoring the respected late leader of the American people. The rest of the beautiful new church was decorated in the National colors and the solemnity and sacredness of the occasion was most pronounced as the impressive service advanced.

The choir was composed of voices from all local churches and directed by Mrs. Oscar Denning. Jesus Lover of My Soul was the first hymn sung, all numbers being favorite selections of the deceased President. Prayer followed by Rev. W. B. Andrews, pastor of the Methodist church in which he plead for God's blessings upon the widow, the nation and the world, made better and greater because of the life of this Mighty Man of Israel. The scriptural reading was by Rev. G. T. Reeves, pastor of the Christian church.

Hon. Lee Pierson, Major N. P. Houx and Hon. William Reed were introduced as the speakers of the hour. Their addresses were rich in reflection and contemplation, especially prepared for the occasion. Their words fell on ears anxious to grasp every sentence. There was no repeating in the short and timely eulogies. Judge Pierson spoke of the deceased as a great national leader. Major Houx spoke of him as a brother newspaper man and William Reed's address was as Harding the Man.

Following the address by Major Houx, which appears in his column in The News today, a quartet composed of Mesdames Denning, Reynolds and Messrs Beene and Baxter sang "Lead Kindly Light. This, beautifully rendered, was followed by Mr. Reed's address.

The benediction was by Chaplain H. G. Pierce of the American Legion. Judge Pierson spoke as follows:

Fellow Americans:

We have assembled here today as Americans at the call of our Nation to pay a tribute to our deceased President whose body is now being consigned to dust, but whose spirit has taken flight to the land of Eternal Sunlight that his unselfish and Christian life on earth so justly merits. By his faithful attention to the needs of the American people and in their service he gave his life for his country as much so as those who sleep in Flanders fields where the poppies grow red as blood that was shed upon the hard fought fields of France.

Although there are two great political parties in America, and President Harding was of the Republican faith; yet, we must not forget that the aims of the two parties are the same. Each party wishes to serve the country in the best possible manner, and to keep it on the high level where we now find it. The differences are not differences of aims, but differences of means. Both parties are sincere, although they look at our national, economic and social problems from different angles. And this is really no disadvantage, but a benefit. Differences in opinion invite discussions, and discussion is education. However, one party acts as a check on the other. Without a system of checks and balances our prosperity would be of short duration.

President Harding had the good of his Nation at heart, his every heart beat was for the American people; he was the champion of their rights, believing in American ideals and traditions, believing that the American citizen treads in the sacredly obliterated footsteps of an earnest and valiant generation of men, who dared to stage life and fortune and sacred honor upon a declaration of rights, whose promulgation shook tyrant to their thrones, gave hope to fainting freedom, and reformed the political ethics of the world, by American Declaration of Independence.

MARION STAR EMPLOYEES LOOK AND WEEP

MARION, Ohio, August 10.—At 10:30 o'clock the employees of the Marion Star gathered for their last look at the body of their late president. They had come to Marion at 10:30 o'clock and the hour was sad to them, as shown in the tears they shed unashamed as they looked their last time on the face of a co-worker with them for many years and one they loved.

Howard Wright will return Friday from Grand Saline where he has been on business.

LARGE CROWD ... ym ...
Let it be said of our late President that the Disarmament Conference is an exhibition of true American statesmanship, an achievement which will make his name in golden letters on the walls of fame. William Jennings Bryan finely phrased it when he characterized President Harding as a greater man than Napoleon. The French War-Lord made war honorable; President Harding made it defensible. To be sure the late President's policy was not that America should not fight when her rights are invaded or her liberty is threatened, but by the action of our late President, American surely won enduring fame, admiration, and everlasting gratitude of the world as the exponent and promoter of the policies of disarmament. With all of European by internal dissention, a President without mercy could have the oceans of the earth flowing with blood. When God in His eternal council conceived the thought of man's creation, he called to him the three angels who wait continually on the throne of grace, Faith, and Mercy, and thus addressing them: "Shall we make man?" Then said Justice: "Oh, God, make him not; for he will trample upon the laws." Truth made answer: "Oh, God, make him not for he will pollute the sanctuaries." Mercy, dropping upon her knees and looking up through her tears, exclaimed: "Oh, God, make him, and I will watch over him with my care through all the dark paths which he may have to tread." Then God made man and said to him: "O, man, thou art the child of Mercy—go and deal with thy brother." Nothing better portrays President Harding's spirit than such an example of sweet charity and mercy.

President Harding was a man of fine Christian character; and his noblest contribution that he has made for the benefit of posterity is that of his good character. The richest bequest that he has left to the youth of the land, is that of a shining, spotless example of a Christian life. He cultivated a spiritual nature and aroused in the mind a desire for a higher and holier life; for "blessed is the man whose delight is the law of the Lord."
Let the spirit of our departed President be with every one of us, lead us onward and upward, travel in that direction then we need not fear "the valley of the shadow of death" for it will be said of us, as it was said of our deceased President: "He is as beautiful as flowers."
... gave a name,

... and said, 'Forget me not!'

... in our hearts the memory
... of that one who has gone before.
... William Reed said:
There is a factor in human nature which really is very fortunate for us which enables us to view suffering and distress with comparative ease. If the sorrows of others affected us as keenly as they do those directly concerned the world never would prosper because pain always exists. When we have the sense of sympathy and try to show it on proper occasions we are in our duty; that the necessity of performance of duty today alleviates the grief of yesterday. The year may remain but in the wisdom of an All-wise Providence the same truth. But occasions do arise in a people's history when the shock of pain is so great as to overcome a whole nation. That is what is now coming through now. The Americans are a peculiar people. What we lack in high regard pronounced ability, influence, profound knowledge, and high great achievement, there is a quality in us which makes personal charm, tenderness, loquacity of character especially appealing. We like to love. When Mr. Harding was elected President of the United States he attracted to himself like a magnet the heart of the country. As to all great men, takes there was proper difference of opinion with respect to policy, but never has there been a whisper against the man kind, gentle, tender, humorous, clean, dignified, with the command respect, and attracted our attention. To my mind he was a very exemplar of American citizenship for he possessed those attributes which we, as a people, most admire, and in a degree that is an encouragement to every man to aspire to by showing in his daily life that it is possible. I think his character was best summed up by this quotation from one of the leading business men of the country.
"One could not meet the late President without being impressed immediately by his unassuming pleasantness. He was just as unaffected in the White House as he was before he became Chief Executive. His tact, his kindness to all, his sympathetic interest in whatever went on about him, were the outward manifestations of the man. He carried his honors always with becoming dignity, but without display. I like to think of him as the representative American citizen—a clean, honorable, hard working, play loving gentleman, with an ever present saving sense of humor."
Such was Warren G. Harding. To us his death seems like a calamity. To that sorrowing woman the light of life is extinguished. But who can say? If we have any faith in religion at all, we know that there is no real death. And as today's work soothes yesterday's sorrow so will tomorrow's joy fulfill the purpose of it all. And we don't have to wait long. It is true in God's eternal plan—it also is true in our mortal life. For the life and death of Mr. Harding has exalted us, and I firmly believe will startle us into a fuller realization of what true manhood can accomplish even in a day that seems to be given over to the violation of every principle which our forefathers so treasured.
Let us bear our grief—let us mourn our loss, but let us rejoice more, that our country still has men—men who can think straight, live straight, and who lead lives that not only command our admiration but our love. Warren G. Harding did all that.

Rotary Address Thursday By Methodist Pastor
The following address was delivered Thursday at the noon hour by Rev. W. B. Andrews, in honor of President Harding. David Murphy in introducing the speaker said "In honoring President Harding today we honor ourselves."
"Our nation sits today under the shadows. Millions of mourning are to be seen everywhere, reminding us of other of his sad visits, taking from us that the Grim Reaper has made us an the chief magistrate of the United States, Warren Gamaliel Harding is dead.
A few weeks ago President Harding's Convention in St. Louis. His theme on that occasion was "Service," made an address to the National Road. Mr. Harding is himself a practical illustration of his eloquent appeal at that hour.
"Two years and a half ago he came to the chief magistracy of this Nation. The world was staggering like a drunken man. In rapid succession had come from one catastrophe to another. First it was war and, this condition called for the bravest and best that was in men. Unselfishness and heroism were the demands of that hour were met. More heroic self-denial has never been asked. No man entered his life or his substance to save to be offered in service to his country. This in turn was followed by an only at selfishness the life of which we had never beheld. This selfishness took the form of profiteering and self-indulgence. All standards were overthrown—social, commercial, moral, religious. Chaos was evident everywhere. Mr. Harding came to the helm of state at such a time as this. To bring order out of chaos and peace out of war was the task before him.

His suggestions of disarmament at the International Peace Conference, held in the city of Washington soon after his induction into office was a master stroke in bringing the Nations back to sanity.
Senator Harding saw world conditions from one angle, but President Harding viewed the entire horizon. His world court plans were definitely announced despite his party. President Harding could not forget the teachings of that Book of Books that "No man liveth unto himself," translating that into larger terms he recognized the brotherhood of humanity; and that no nation liveth unto itself.

Mr. Harding was the central figure of world peace. Without stint he gave himself to that great task. But the work was too great even for the physical strength he possessed. With his face set and a heart to serve, he fell at the post of duty.
It has been well said that Woodrow Wilson was a casualty of the world war. As truly may it be said that Warren G. Harding was a casualty of world peace.
Today as his neighbors tenderly put away the body of him they loved so well, may we as a nation turn from that grave with brave hearts to take up and carry to completion his unfinished tasks."

Klansmen Send A Flower Cross To Harding Home
MARION, Ohio, August 10.—A florist's truck moved up to the Harding home this morning, paused a few moments, while its delivery was made. It was found to be a large Fiery Cross, bearing large white letters, K. K. K. marked thereon. A small note accompanied the floral offering, signed by the Ku Klux Klan. The cross was made of Red Lillies and Scarlet strat. It was placed erect near the other flowers that had been tendered in respect for the dead, in the side of the yard of the home. It was not known what the truck contained until it had quietly passed on and without a word being spoken.

Military outposts on roads around the city reported that the incoming crowd was swelling ever hour. Columns of cars moved into Marion three abreast on every highway. Many people who had slept in their machines or camped in the fields around the city, joined the incoming throng.

When the funeral hour approached the people grew restive, fearful they would be disappointed, and not get into the house. The line moved faster and faster.
Special trains arrived in the city every few minutes, and hundreds of people swarmed from these trains. The Erie railroad alone had thirty special trains.

The Reichs Bank Closes Unable To Pay More

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The Reichs bank closed this afternoon, unable to make further payments. The dollar is quoted at one million eight hundred thousand marks, and a pound at seven million marks. Panic spirit prevailed. Holders of foreign currencies threw heavy pressure on the market.

All newspapers except those of laborites suspended and there is a recurrence of a crop of wild rumors which furnished excellent nourishment for disorders a year ago. Strike is considered largely political. Gold marks demanded by workers. The success of the strike program might mean the overturning of the government for wage payments on gold stand and impossible at present.

THOUSANDS IN REVERENCE TO NATION'S DEAR.

Thousands of mourners, those who loved Warren G. Harding for his kindness, watched the progress of the funeral train as it passed through Chicago on its way eastward. The crowds, in which children predominated, cheered the progress of the train, which was hurrying to keep to schedule. Mrs. Harding asked that the train's progress be retarded. "We—Warren and I—love, or have always loved children so."

WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING
Man, Citizen, Husband, Editor,

Today we are forcibly reminded that "the path of glory leads but to the grave," and "in the midst of life we are in death."

"Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower and is cut down. He fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not."

"Life is a narrow veil between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."

This seems strangely true today as we stand in the presence of death. Only a few days ago the peoples of this entire nation—and of the world—were following the travels of this good man and eagerly drinking in his every word as he talked, face to face, with his countrymen about the needs of the world and his plans for a lasting peace, while today we are bowed in grief because of the awfulness of his sudden and untimely departure from a life of usefulness.

So, "we cannot be too often reminded that we are born to die." "The young may die, the old must die, the wisest knoweth not how soon." The innocent cooing babe at its mother's breast dwells ever in the shadow of death; while the invisible hand stretches equally above the old in their infirmities. "We walk upon the ashes of generations who have gone this way before us, and our bodies, too, must soon crumble into dust." We cannot hope to escape the common doom of man, but we can so live that when life's week is ended and the Sabbath of Eternity sets in, we may rest secure in the "dawn of a never ending day."

With yet the prospect of many more years of usefulness before him, encouraged by physicians and friends who had hopes for his early and complete recovery, the Death Angel, ever hovering near, suddenly snatched the frail cord that binds soul to body, and in the twinkling of an eye the spirit of Warren G. Harding quit its tenement of clay and passed into that mysterious land from whose bourn no traveler has ever returned, and today while the mortal body is consigned to the grave—that windowless palace—into which the rays of the sun never enter, a nation mourns for a faithful official and a christian gentleman.

The Gamaliel of ancient Jewish history followed Moses out of Egypt and through the wilderness. His modern namesake lived up to the same teachings and followed the Christ in his daily life, whether as a son, companion, husband, citizen, or public official. His was a life of service. He believed in the Golden Rule and practiced it in his contact with mankind. He believed in "doing noble things, not dreaming them all day long, and so make life, death, and that vast forever one grand sweet song."

The best evidence of a man's character is found in the hearts of his neighbors. We read that the editors, reporters and printers with whom President Harding had worked for so many years in the newspaper business, wrote and set up the story of his life with tears streaming down their cheeks. They knew the man for what he really was.

"God give us men"—more men like Harding to place in our public offices.

And now, while we mourn for our departed chief, our prayers and sympathies go out in full measure to the brave little woman whose life partner has "Gone to that land upon whose peaceful shore

"There rests no shadow, falls no pain,
"Where those who meet shall part no more,
"And those long parted shall meet again."

Judge W. A. Shields and Mrs. Shields of Breckenridge stopped overnight on their way to the coast for a month vacation. Mrs. Shields is a sister of L. S. Patterson of this city.

Knitted Neckerchief Makes Most Charming Accessory

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

One of the delights of this season is the knitted neckerchief. We are only just beginning to appreciate what a fund of lovely ideas it offers.

The picture tells a different story. It reveals the theme translated in the language of knitted art. It does not take much of an imagination to sense the decorative charm of a neckerchief knitted of fiber silk, the major color being burnt orange with diagonal paisley stripes done in green, orchid, purple, blue, yellow, white and black. The outstanding beauty touch is attained in the deep fringe which displays the multi-colors of the paisley design.

There are many types of these knitted "shawls" and they all make color their outstanding feature. Brilliant Italian shades, bold, deep colors add charm to the idea. It is any a summer costume is en-

COL. GUY D. GOFF

A despotism of the proletariat, enforced by a militant minority upon the United States, was forecast by Colonel Guy D. Goff, former general counsel to the United States Shipping Board and until recently Assistant Attorney General, in an address to the National Coal Association. Colonel Goff declared that an attempt is being made to change the form of American labor organization from trade unions into industrial unions as an opening wedge toward compelling the majority in America to accept the doctrine of communism.

"It is not proposed to convert a majority of the people of this country to the principles of communism because it is recognized by communists that the majority will not accept such a doctrine. It is proposed to organize a militant minority to compel the majority to accept such a change," Colonel Goff asserted.

Organization of the workers in the essential industries of the nation, each industrial union governed by its own committee and its own officers, and the creation of a single inter-industrial union, so that at the command of a single central committee all the workers in essential industries would be compelled to lay down their tools and by the coercive power of a general strike compel a majority to submit to the dictates of the minority, Colonel Goff asserted was the object of insidious propaganda now being put out.

"This is not theoretical," Colonel Goff continued, "for agitation of this kind is being daily carried on in all of our essential industries and in some of the process of reorganization along these lines has already been accomplished. It was early recognized that the concentration of control of capital and rule by monopolies was destructive of personal liberty. It must now be recognized that the centralized control over large masses of workers in essential industries will lay the foundation for despotism."

"Many of the conservative leaders of organized labor recognize this condition and are doing their utmost to prevent its fulfillment. It is essential that employers and men of business shall also recognize this movement and employ their energies to prevent its progress if they hope to preserve the spirit of liberty which has formed the basis of American institutions."

Greatest No Higher Than The Humblest Gather About Tomb

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 10.—His own home folk accorded, simple, final funeral honors to President Warren G. Harding here today. Not with crashing volleys and the wailing notes of "taps" but with the old-fashioned, homely ceremonies that might be accorded any leading citizen of Marion, the twenty-ninth president was laid to rest by his fellow townsmen.

It was a home funeral, attended by the home folks of Marion and of Washington and of nearly every state in the Union. The tribute paid today by thousands was a tribute to Harding the citizen and the friend, not to Harding the president.

All the morning as the body lay in state in the home of his father, Dr. George T. Harding, on East Center St., a continuous file of people passed thru the house, past the simple bier and out again onto the street. Militiamen guided the throngs of citizens, eager to pay their last respects to Warren G. Harding.

In preparation for the funeral all the downtown streets and State st., leading to the cemetery, were freed from motor and street car traffic. Only official cars of President Coolidge's party or those directly connected with the funeral, were permitted on those streets. Yet, at the expressed wish of Mrs. Harding, everybody had a chance to pass thru the house and view the body.

At one o'clock this afternoon the Harding home was closed to visitors, and at two o'clock the procession of automobiles, lined up for blocks to the East of Dr. Harding's home, began to form.

Every effort was made at the cemetery to give everybody a chance to hear the simple services. Soldiers directed automobiles thru the winding roadways, unloaded them and sent them outside the cemetery again. The funeral procession from the house to the cemetery was as follows:

The Reverend George M. Landis, Baptist, and the Reverend Jesse Swank, Methodist, officiating clergymen.

President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, Secretary Hughes and Speaker Clegg.

Secretary Weeks and Mellon, Atty. Gen. Daugherty and Postmaster General New.

Secretaries Denby, Work, Wallace and Hoover.

Senator Cummins, President pro tem of the Senate, and Governor Donahoe of Ohio.

Mrs. Harding, Presidential Secretary Christian and General Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Harding Sr., and Jr. father and brother of the president, and Charles Harding and Mary Elizabeth Harding, nephew and niece of the president.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Remsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Heber Votaw, Misses Remsburg, George Van Fleet, Mrs. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Elmg, Mrs. Harding's brother and sister-in-law.

Roscoe Metzger and family.

Dr. and Mrs. Boone, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, Judson Weliver.

There were fifty other cars in line carrying officials, hometown mourners and newspaper correspondents.

After the ceremony at the vault, unmarked by any sign of high office except for six temporary white pillars surmounted by eagles, a guard of troops was to be left behind to watch over the body of the president.

The new president, the secretary of state, the chief justice of the Supreme Court, and many other dignitaries joined with Mr. Harding's friends and associates in paying farewell respects.

In the final act of the great national drama, which started at San Francisco and extended across the continent, the body was to be carried in a hearse to Marion Cemetery and placed in a receiving vault.

The setting was one of the most remarkable in history for the funeral of the chief of state of a great nation. The center of it was an old two-story and cupola house on a shady thoroughfare, with trim lawns, and little cottages sitting side by side with the larger dwellings of the first families.

The end of the trail was a beautiful cemetery on the south edge of town.

In front of the house a long line of people led slowly in. The guards were strung all along the house, and there were some at the rear gate into the back yard, an enclosure overgrown with grass while barnyard fowls strutted. Streamers of white and black crepe hung from the occasional lamp posts in East Center St. near the front of the house.

The sympathy of the town—and of the nation—went out to the two chief mourners, Mrs. Harding, stoically preserving her courage thru it all, and the president's aged father, Dr. George T. Harding, who was so shocked by his son's death that it was impossible for him to walk without support.

While the upending column was passing the casket, more than fifty automobiles were forming in line in the street for the procession to the cemetery. The home was to be closed at one o'clock after which the widow was to look on her husband's face for the last time. Then, the trip to the cemetery.

In Memoriam

As a single mourner, the Nation stood still with bowed head for a brief moment today, in reverent respect for the departed leader. Simultaneously in great cities and tiny hamlets, the length and breadth of the United States, the rush and bustle of daily life was stilled for a brief span. Then, men, women and children stood silent, honoring Warren G. Harding.

In most communities, the period of silence varies from one to five minutes, at the moment that a signal announces that the late President's remains have been laid in the Crypt at Marion. Many places halted at 3:00 o'clock or at noon. Whatever the hour, the occasion was one in which every citizen of the United States pays his individual respect to the fallen President.

Not only the American people, but all the varied vast and complicated machinery of traffic, commerce and communication and manufacture that has become a part of American life—the hum of telephone and telegraph were still for a period today, a silence which gave the nation a quiet instant reverence.

In many cities memorial services began automatically at 3:00 o'clock (Central Time) when the interment took place. In Mexia and in many other cities the fitting program of the day was conducted at 10:30 in the morning.

The observance of silence is not confined to the borders of the United States. In every far flung possession or consulate, the same simple act of respect were or will be performed. Ships at sea will still their engines and passengers and crews take part in the national ceremony.

Many business houses in Mexia closed at some hour during the day and quite a few for the memorial service at the Christian church.

Flags are visible at half mast on many buildings in the city and a reverential demeanor assumed by citizens on the street as they contemplate the life, death and burial of the twenty-ninth President of the United States.

FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 10.—France and America joined hands in paying final tribute to President Harding. American ex-soldiers marched to the Place de la Concorde and stood with their faces toward Marion, Ohio, while taps was sounded. Hundreds of American and French civilians stood with bowed heads. Official services were held at an American church. American business was suspended throughout the continent.

ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Impressive memorial services were held for President Harding in Westminster Abbey. The duke and duchess of York represented the king and queen. All other members of the royal family were represented. Flags are at half mast throughout the United Kingdom.

GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—President Ebert, Ambassador Houghton, diplomatic and other notables attended memorial services for President Harding.

CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 10.—Memorial services for President Harding were held in the American embassy in the presence of diplomats, allied generals and the American colony.

MEXIA PRINTERS PAUSE FOR MEMORIAL SERVICE IN CHAPEL OF UNION

Mexia Typographical Union 879 met at the Chapel of the Union in the News Publishing Company at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon, for a fifteen minute memorial service in honor of their deceased brother, President Warren G. Harding, member of Marion local. During the hour, work at both Union shops in the city stopped, members from both taking part. The meeting was presided over by the President of the Local Union, Charles M. Church.

The Twenty-third Psalm was read by Major N. P. Houx, a prayer followed by A. Garland Adair, Editor of The News. Fitting remarks for the occasion were made by W. K. Boyd, President of the News Publishing Company, and De Witt Lamb of the American Printing Company.

One Of First Homes Built In Mexia Burns

The fire alarm sounded this morning about 5 o'clock and the local fire department responded to the Modern Rooms on East Millam street, which was enveloped in flames. Good work of the firemen prevented the fire spreading to adjoining houses nearby. The origin of the fire is said to have been caused from defective wiring. The house represented an old landmark in Mexia, it having been built in 1876 on a spot on Palestine and Sherman streets where the Majestic hotel now stands. During the boom it was moved to its present location to make room for the Majestic. It was built originally by J. A. Arvin and during the boom days was converted into a rooming house. It was owned by Jesse McLendon and occupied by Mr. Harwood. It is learned the latter saved a part of the furniture. The building was insured for $1,000.

Nowlin Post To Go After State Meet Of Legion

The Nowlin Post of the American Legion, held a joint memorial service and business session in the offices of Watkins and Wroe, a local law firm. Post Commander Owen F. Watkins presided at the informal session. Brief tributes to the late leader and commander in chief of the American military forces were offered by Commander Watkins and Comrade A. Garland Adair. The former stressed the beauty of the private life of Warren G. Harding and his desire to make friends rather than enemies. The latter stated that the purpose of memorial services is three fold: first to pay respects due the deceased; second, to seek to extend a hand of condolence to sad loved ones, and; third to draw what lessons we may of inspiration to the living.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions of regret to Warren G. Harding and a pledge of patriotic support to the new President now in power.

Following the memorial service, the Post Commander called attention to the State Convention of the American Legion which will be held in Galveston August 22, 29 and 30.

It was moved that delegates be selected for that event and all members urged to attend, if possible. It was pointed out that Mexia has one of the largest posts in all Texas, and is entitled to 25 votes in the convention. Mexia, Nowlin Post has 248 members. A motion was also passed instructing the delegates to vote as a unit.

Mrs. E. A. Teter, the only lady member of the local post proposed that Mexia go to the convention with the intention of bringing the annual session of 1924 back to Mexia. The suggestion was accepted with enthusiasm and the Post will begin work at once to secure the convention for this place. The last Thursday night in this month, the Post will meet and instruct the delegates on plans and what they will be expected to favor at the state meeting.

The following delegates, subject to change, were appointed:

Owen F. Watkins, Chairman, A. Garland Adair, Vice-Chairman, Mrs. E. A. Teter, E. A. Teter, Dr. Harry A. Porter, Harry A. Maddox, Scott Reed, Z. Rochelle, P. H. Souris, J. H. Kirby, Hugh Hardcastle, J. V. Avara, A. E. Kinchloe, W. M. Schmidt, Johnson, Epperson, Ben Stollenwerck, Adjutant S. B. Warner and Fountain H. Kirby.

Widow And Large Crowd At Memorial Hour Alone Here Today

MARION, Ohio, August 10.—Marion's best loved citizen, the twenty-ninth president of the United States was laid to rest here this afternoon, the last services starting at 3:00 o'clock.

The funeral of Warren G. Harding, impressive in its simplicity, brought nearly 100,000 people to Marion to pay their last respects to the nation's late chief executive.

No sermon was preached, no bands played, there was neither flashing of sabers, rattle of artillery caissons, nor firing of salutes to mark the laying away of the President.

Eight thousand troops were in town but there was no show of armed force at any time during the day.

Crowds that have been coming in for several days were so great that they camped in large numbers at the Fair grounds. Scores of special trains continued to arrive far up into day. The day dawned clear but later the sky became overcast.

Columns of cars moved into Marion three abreast over every highway. President Coolidge and his party arrived at 12:32. They remained in cars until the hour approached for the last sad services.

At three o'clock the cortege moved through the still, tree shaded streets to the cemetery, between the mighty throng of friends and neighbors. Tears flowed from thousands of eyes as they watched the last procession in which Warren will ever take part in Marion. Through the opened gates to the cemetery, the procession quietly passed, with only the sobs of loved ones breaking the solemnity of the day. There was no pomp, no brilliant trappings that marked the stately procession. Behind the gray hearse in which the casket was borne came the honorary pall bearers, who were members of the cabinet, Senator Cummins, president pro-tem of the Senate, Speaker Gillett of the House, Calvin Coolidge, now the first citizen of the Republic, Present Chief Justice Taft and other members of the Supreme Court, the wives of cabinet officers and a host of other men and women occupying humble places in the government followed these.

Early this morning Mrs. Harding and her husband's aged father began preparations for the ordeal of the day. "My boy! My boy! was his wail as he prepared to follow the son to the mouth of the grave. At one o'clock this afternoon, the doors to the house were closed. All the world, even Marion, was excluded from the scene until two o'clock, while Mrs. Harding and the aged father took their last look upon the still face. The hour passed all too swiftly for the woman and old man. When they left the silent room, the other relatives, George T. Harding, Jr., the brother; Mrs. E. E. Remsburg, Abigail Harding and Mrs. Heber Votaw, the sisters, with their families, then were admitted for their farewells. Softly then, as the hour of three approached, the casket was shut—forever.

The members of the cabinet, President Coolidge and the party that went from Washington to Alaska with Mr. Harding, gathered while the coffin was carried for the last time from the father's house, by the same honor guard of young men of the army and navy and marine corps, who have borne it since leaving the Palace hotel in San Francisco a week ago. Flowers in profusion are heaped high around the premises of the Harding home.

H. J. Hawk, B. A. Johnson, W. S. Banks, Dr. R. E. Forrester, Wyatt Hay, Dr. Marion M. Brown, Wright Kinchloe, W. M. Schmidt, Johnson, Epperson, Ben Stollenwerck, Adjutant S. B. Warner and Fountain H. Kirby.

A crowd that taxed the First Christian church this morning at 10:30 assembled in a memorial service, honoring the respected late leader of the American people. The rear of the beautiful new church was decorated in the national colors and the solemnity and sacredness of the occasion was most pronounced as the impressive service advanced.

The choir was composed of voices from all local churches and directed by Mrs. Oscar Denning. Jesus Lover of My Soul was the first hymn sung, all numbers being favorite selections of the deceased President. Prayer followed by Rev. W. B. Andrews, pastor of the Methodist church in which he pleaded for God's blessings upon the widow, the nation and the world, made better and greater because of the life of this Mighty Man of Israel. The scriptural reading was by Rev. G. T. Reeves, pastor of the Christian church.

Hon. Lee Pierson, Major N. P. Houx and Hon. William Reed were introduced as the speakers of the hour. Their addresses were rich in reflection and contemplation, especially prepared for the occasion. Their words fell on ears anxious to grasp every sentence. There was no repeating in the short and timely eulogies. Judge Pierson spoke of the deceased as a great national leader. Major Houx spoke of him as a brother newspaper man and William Reed discussed him as Harding the Man.

Following the address by Major Houx, which appears in his column in The News today, a quartet composed of Mesdames Denning, Reynold and Messrs Beene and Baxter sang "Lead Kindly Light. This, beautifully rendered, was followed by Mr. Reed's address.

The benediction was by Chaplain H. G. Pierce of the American Legion. Judge Pierson spoke as follows: Fellow Americans:

We have assembled here today as Americans at the call of our Nation to pay a tribute to our deceased President whose body is now being consigned to dust, but whose spirit has taken flight to the land of Eternal Sunlight that his unselfish and Christian life on earth so justly merits. By his faithful attention to the needs of the American people and in their service he gave his life for his country as much so as those who sleep in Flanders fields where the poppies grow red as blood that was shed upon the hard fought fields of France.

Although there are two great political parties in America, and President Harding was of the Republican faith; yet, we must not forget that the aims of the two parties are the same. Each party wishes to serve the country in the best possible manner, and to keep it on the high level where we now find it. The differences are not differences of aims, but differences of means. Both parties are sincere, although they look at our national, economic and social problems from different angles. And this is really no disadvantage, but a benefit. Differences in opinion invite discussions, and discussion is education. However, one party acts as a check on the other. Without a system of checks and balances our prosperity would be of short duration.

President Harding had the good of his Nation at heart, his every heart beat was for the American people; he was the champion of their rights, believing in American ideals and traditions, believing that the American citizen treads in the scarcely obliterated footsteps of an earnest and valiant generation of men, who dared to stage life and fortune and sacred honor upon a declaration of rights, whose promulgation shook tyrant to their thrones, gave hope to fainting freedom, and reformed the political ethics of the world, by American Declaration of Independence.

MARION STAR EMPLOYEES LOOK AND WEEP

MARION, Ohio, August 10.—At 8:30 this morning the employees of the Marion Star, built by Warren Harding, filed through for their look at the chief they had come to know so intimately. The hour was sad to them, as shown in the tears they shed unashamed as they looked their last time on the face of a co-worker with them for many years and one they loved.

Howard Wright will return Friday from Grand Saline where he has been on business.

LARGE CROWD

Let it be said of our late President that the Disarmament Conference is an exhibition of true American statesmanship, an achievement which will write his name in golden letters on the walls of fame. William Jennings Bryan finely phrased it when he characterized President Harding as a greater man than Napoleon. The French War-Lord made war honorable; President Harding made it detestable. To be sure the late President's policy was not that America should not fight when her rights are invaded or her liberty is threatened, but by the action of our late President, America surely won enduring fame, admiration and everlasting gratitude of the world as the exponent and promulgator of the policies of disarmament. With all of Europe torn by internal dissension, a President without mercy could have the oceans of the earth flowing with blood. When God in His eternal council conceived the thought of man's creation, He called to him the three ministers who wait continually on the throne—Justice, Truth, and Mercy, and thus addressing them: "Shall we make man?" Then said Justice: "Oh, God, make him not; for he will trample upon the laws." Truth made answer: "Oh, God, make him not for he will pollute the sanctuaries." Mercy, dropping upon her knees and looking up through her tears, exclaimed: "Oh, God, make him, and I will watch over him with my care through all the dark paths which he may have to tread." Then God made man and said to him: "O, man, thou art the child of Mercy—go and deal with thy brother." Nothing better portrays President Harding's spirit than such an example of sweet charity and mercy.

President Harding was a man of fine Christian character; and the noblest contribution that he has made for the benefit of posterity is that of his good character. The richest behest that he has left to the youth of the land, is that of a shining, spotless example of a Christian life. He cultivated a spiritual nature and aroused in the mind a desire for a higher and holier life; for "blessed is the man whose delight is the law of the Lord".

Let the spirit of our departed President be with every one of us, direct us onward and upward, as we travel in that direction then we need not fear "the valley of death," but it will be said of us, as it was said of our deceased President: "He is the flowers so beautiful, the Father gave a name, he came a little blue-eyed one and timidly it came"; standing at the Father's feet, looking in his face, and in low and trembling tones: "Dear God, the name Thou gavest me, I have forgot".

Kindly the Father looked him down and said, "Forget me not."

May this meditation direct our thoughts to that which ennobles and ennobles in our hearts the memory of that one who has gone before.

William Reed said:

There is a factor in human nature (which really is very fortunate for us) which enables us to view suffering and distress with comparative ease. If the sorrows of others affected us as keenly as they do those directly concerned, the world never would recover because pain always exists. While we have the sense of sympathy and try to show it on proper occasions we are so constituted that the necessity of performance of duty today alleviates the grief of yesterday. The scar may remain but in the wisdom of an All-wise Providence the sore heals. But occasions do arise in a people's history when the shock of loss is so great as to prostrate a whole nation. That is what we are passing through now. We Americans are a peculiar people. While we hold in high regard pronounced ability, admire profound statesmanship, and had great achievements, there is a quality in us which makes personal charm, tenderness, loveliness of character especially appealing. We like to love. When Mr. Harding was elected President of the United States he attracted himself like a magnet the heart of the country. As in all great undertakings there was proper difference of opinion with respect to policy, but never has there been a whiff of anger against the man. Kind, gentle, tender, humorous, clean, dignified, with the command of respect, and attracted our affection. To my mind he was a very exemplar of American citizenship for he possessed those attributes which we, as a people, most admire, and in a degree that is an encouragement to every man to aspire to by showing in his daily life that it is possible. I think his character was best summed up by this quotation from one of the leading business men of the country:

"One could not meet the late President without being impressed immediately by his unassuming greatness. He was just as unaffected in the White House as he was before he became Chief Executive. His tact, his kindness to all, his sympathetic interest in whatever went on about him, were the outward manifestations of the man. He carried his honors always with becoming dignity, but without display. I like to think of him as the representative American citizen—a clean, honorable, hard working, play loving gentleman, with an ever present saving sense of humor."

Such was Warren G. Harding. To us his death seems like a calamity. To that sorrowing woman the light of life is extinguished. But who can say? If we have any faith in religion at all, we know that there is no real death. And as today's work soothes yesterday's sorrow so will tomorrow's joy fulfill the purpose of it all. And we don't have to wait long. It is true in God's eventual plan—it also is true in our mortal life. For the life and death of Mr. Harding has exalted us, and I firmly believe will stir us into a fuller realization of what true manhood can accomplish even in a day that seems to be given over to the violation of every principle which our forefathers so treasured.

Let us bear our grief—let us mourn our loss, but let us rejoice more, that our country still has men—men who can think straight, live straight, and who lead lives that not only command our admiration but our love. Warren G. Harding did all that.

of selfishness the like of which we had never beheld. This selfishness took the form of profiteering and self-indulgence. All standards were overthrown—social, commercial, moral, religious. Chaos was evident everywhere. Mr. Harding came to the helm of state at such a time as this. To bring order out of chaos and peace out of war was the task before him.

His suggestions of disarmament at the International Peace Conference, held in the city of Washington soon after his induction into office was a master stroke in bringing the Nations back to sanity.

Senator Harding saw world conditions from one angle, but President Harding viewed the entire horizon. His world court plans were definitely announced despite his party. President Harding could not forget the teachings of that Book of Books that "No man liveth unto himself," translating that into larger terms he recognized the brotherhood of humanity, and that no nation liveth unto itself.

Mr. Harding was the central figure of world peace. Without stint he gave himself to that great task. But the work was too great even for the physical strength he possessed. With his face set and a heart to serve, he fell at the post of duty.

It has been well said that Woodrow Wilson was a casualty of the world war. As truly may it be said that Warren G. Harding was a casualty of world peace.

Today as his neighbors tenderly put away the body of him they loved so well, may we as a nation turn from that grave with brave hearts to take up and carry to completion his unfinished tasks."

dead, in the side of the yard of the home. It was not known what the truck contained until it had quietly passed on and without a word being spoken.

Military outposts on roads around the city reported that the incoming crowd was swelling ever hour. Columns of cars moved into Marion three abreast on every highway. Many people who had slept in their machines or camped in the fields around the city, joined the incoming throng.

When the funeral hour approached the people grew restive, fearful they would be disappointed, and not get into the house. The line moved faster and faster.

Special trains arrived in the city every few minutes, and hundreds of people swarmed from these trains. The Erie railroad alone had thirty special trains.

Klansmen Send A Flower Cross To Harding Home

MARION, Ohio, August 10.—A florist's truck moved up to the Harding home this morning, paused a few moments, while its delivery was made. It was found to be a large Fiery Cross, bearing large white letters, K. K. K. marked thereon. A small note accompanied the floral offering, signed by the Ku Klux Klan. The cross was made of Red Lillies and Scarlet strat. It was placed erect near the other flowers that had been tendered in respect for the

Rotary Address Thursday By Methodist Pastor

The following address was delivered Thursday at the noon hour by Rev. W. B. Andrews, in honor of President Harding. David Murphy in introducing the speaker said "In honoring President Harding today we honor ourselves."

"Our nation sits today under the shadows. Emblems of mourning are to be seen everywhere, reminding us of other of his sad visits, taking from us the chief magistrate of the United States. Warren Gamaliel Harding is dead.

A few weeks ago President Harding tary Convention in St. Louis. His theme on that occasion was "Service." made an address to the National R. Mr. Harding is himself a practical illustration of his eloquent appeal at that hour.

Two years and a half ago he came to the chief magistracy of this Nation. The world was staggering like a drunken man. In rapid succession it had gone from one calamity to another. First it was war mud. This condition called for the bravest and best that was in men. Unselfish and bravely the demands of that hour were met. More heroic self-denial we have never beheld. No man counted his life or his substance too dear to be offered in service to his country. This in turn was followed by an out-

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

THE TWENTY THIRD PSALM.

1. The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
2. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters.
3. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.
4. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
5. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
6. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

THE GLORY OF OUR COUNTRY

Simplicity and sincerity have touched and exalted every swiftly changing scene in the 4,000 mile funeral procession of the late President of the United States. A million people possibly saw the shadowy special that bore the broken blade of the keenest sword unshathed in favor of a World Tribunal.

There was no pomp nor display. The scene was worthy of Americans and adds luster to the flag, now seen through a mist of soul stirring sorrow.

Wherever the line of travel led, at railroad stations and out in the land where the West is West or the East is East, a million people bared their heads and looked with eyes untouched by unbecoming curiosity prompted not only by admiration and affection for the deceased but baptized again with love and devotion to home and country. Out of all stations and walks of life they trooped, men in shirt sleeves, women in calico dresses and boys barefoot. There were girls, also, their eyes wet with tears. Such scenes are not only to be seen in Marion today but have been characteristic of the mourning of the American people wherever the story of death has been read.

Warren G. Harding, the printer, the editor, the neighbor, the Christian, the friend of man, the American, today, is being returned to the earth to rise in eternal celestial glory. Better it is, even though silent in death, to go to the grave attended by such beautiful testimonials, simple though they may be, than to ascend an earthly throne, in the prime vigor of manhood and selfish kingly power, amidst all the fawnings and artificial splendor of Time's greatest monarchy.

It has been well said that poetry still flees the palace to charm with cottage souls; and the meek inherit not only the earth, but the sky and the stars. This spirit, the glory that is America, is also the dignity of an American's life.

CITY WATER METERS

The installation of water meters in Mexia is a necessity. That necessity is brought about both by injustice and in order to assure a continued adequate supply in so far as the present available source permits. It is not right for one citizen to pay a certain price per month for water when another water consumer in another part of town pays half that amount or less. The water meter is necessary to equalize the burden and assure that all citizens pay alike in proportion to the water they use. The installation of the water meter will cause many who extravagantly use water to economize and cut down to their needs merely.

If citizens are requested to make a deposit on their meters, which they are, the city authorities should arrange for the city water department to pay at least 6 per cent on the deposit annually. As a principle, there is not a great deal of difference in a grocer asking a customer to make a deposit on the scales on which he is to weigh his groceries than for a city to ask its water patrons to pay meters to measure the water that they use at home or in business houses. The same is true of the gas company. The money to buy water meters and gas meters has to come from some source. Then if the patrons are to make the investment for the water department the City of Mexia should reimburse the citizens for their loan with at least 6 per cent interest. It would amount to very little to the individual, it is true, and not a great deal to the city, but it would be in accordance with legal banking principles which prompt the transaction at the outset.

This is not a new and impractical scheme. San Antonio, a city of 175,000 people and scores of thousands of homes and business follows this plan, paying the nominal sum of 6 per cent on the loans made by private individuals in the development of its water system through the city's water meters.

The amount is possibly not large but a number of little things soon make a lot.

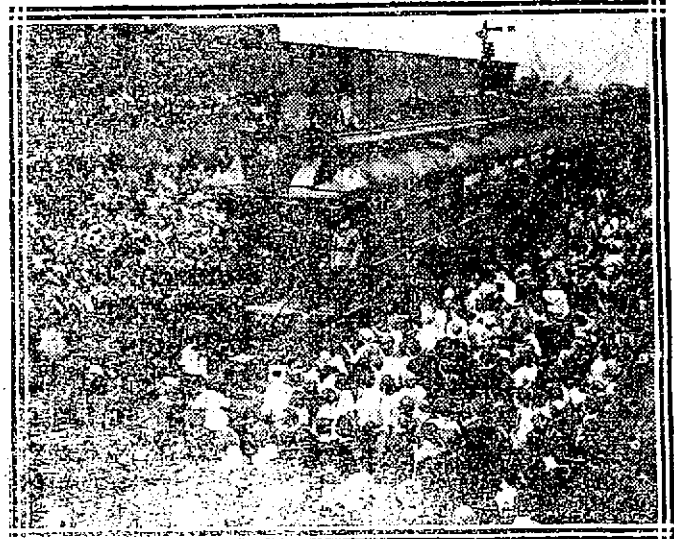

Nearly everybody knows that under the present plan, the few street lights in Mexia cannot be turned off in day light hours without causing the power everywhere else. It would be a whole lot better, though, if the plan was changed so that Mexia could have twice as many lights at night with the same cost. Burning electric lights in day time on the streets of Mexia holds up a bad example for future citizens who must learn lessons in economy and conservation, if they are to succeed.

CHICAGO'S TRIBUTE TO HARDING

A mammoth wreath of the late President Harding's favorite flower, the rose, together with stately lilies and fragrant lilacs of the valley, formed Chicago's tribute to the dead leader. Bearing a white ribbon with the gold letters "Chicago's Sympathy," it was laid on the casket as the funeral train passed through the city where in 1920 Harding was nominated for the Presidency.

ON LAST LAP OF JOURNEY OF SORROW.

With the mountains and sunbaked plains of the Far West and the waving stretches of midwestern corn behind, the car bearing the remains of Warren G. Harding passed through Chicago on the last lap of its sad journey. Thousands thronged the tracks along its course through the city.

Knights of Pythias Enjoy Visit From Grand Chancellor

The members of the Knights of Pythias who attended the meeting Thursday night will not soon forget it.

Quite a number of the members came out to meet the Grand Chancellor, Hon. Wm. M. Fitch, of Henderson. Judge A. M. Blackmon of Groesbeck, a long time personal friend of the Grand Chancellor, was present and made a short talk on Pythianism. But the feature of the evening was the splendid address by the honor guest. He told of his work in the state and of the lodges he had visited and the many more that he hopes to visit while in his present office. It was a splendid address and all enjoyed his visit.

At the close of the meeting a big freezer of ice cream was consumed while the gathered Pythians spent a social hour.

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

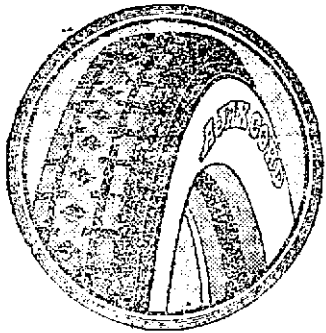

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself."

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart. This nervous condition was worse than pain."

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it. After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well. I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you should find Cardui helpful for your troubles. Get a bottle of Cardui, today. NC-144

It's all a matter of taste

A MAN can kiss a cow if he wants to—after all it's nobody's business but his own.

A man can use valve cups, that fail to deliver the goods, year after year—his own pocketbook is the one that suffers.

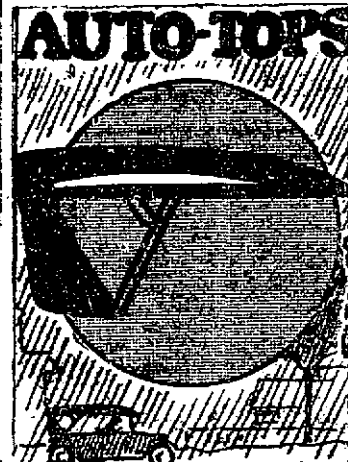

For 15 years oil men everywhere have known the name Darcova as a mark of the valve cup that wears longer and pumps more oil.

Those who buy valve cups with the utmost care in view are boosters of Darcova. Those who prefer to save a few cents at the time of buying and waste labor, oil and money at the time of using, are satisfied with substitutes.

It's all a matter of taste.

THOUSANDS IN REVERENCE TO NATION'S DEAR.

Thousands of mourners, those who loved Warren G. Harding for his kindness, watched the progress of the funeral train as it passed through Chicago on its way eastward. The crowds, in which children predominated, hampered the progress of the train, which was hurrying to keep to schedule. Mrs. Harding asked that the train's progress be retarded. "We—Warren and I—love, or have always loved children so."

Among the recent gifts to the Library is a set of books, "The World's Great Masterpieces," in thirty volumes given by Major and Mrs. N. P. Houx.

These books are a record of the great things that have been said and thought and done from the beginning of history.

A valuable addition to the Reference Department is a collection of books on Art, presented by Kelley Stevens. They are: "Ancient Art and Ritual," by Jane Ellen Harrison; "The Art of The Berlin Galleries," by David C. Preyer; "The Art of Painting in The Nineteenth Century," "American Masters of Painting," by Charles H. Caffin.

WARREN, GAMALIEL, HARDING

Man, Citizen, Husband, Editor, Public Official

Today we are forcibly reminded that "the path of glory leads but to the grave," and "in the midst of life we are in death."

"Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower and is cut down. He fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not."

"Life is a narrow veil between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."

This seems strangely true today as we stand in the presence of death. Only a few days ago the peoples of this entire nation—and of the world—were following the travels of this good man and eagerly drinking in his every word as he talked, face to face, with his countrymen about the needs of the world and his plans for a lasting peace, while today we are bowed in grief because of the awfulness of his sudden and untimely departure from a life of usefulness.

So, "we cannot be too often reminded that we are born to die." "The young may die, the old must die, the wisest knoweth not how soon." The innocent cooing babe at its mother's breast dwells ever in the shadow of death; while the invisible hand stretches equally above the old in their infirmities. "We walk upon the ashes of generations who have gone this way before us, and our bodies, too, must soon crumble into dust." We cannot hope to escape the common doom of man, but we can so live that when life's week is ended and the Sabbath of Eternity sets in, we may rest secure in the "dawn of a never ending day."

With yet the prospect of many more years of usefulness before him, encouraged by physicians and friends who had hopes for his early and complete recovery, the Death Angel, ever hovering near, suddenly snapped the frail cord that binds soul to body, and in the twinkling of an eye the spirit of Warren G. Harding quit its tenement of clay and passed into that mysterious land from whose bourn no traveler has ever returned, and today while the mortal body is consigned to the grave—that windowless palace—into which the rays of the sun never enter, a nation mourns for a faithful official and a christian gentleman.

The Gamaliel of ancient Jewish history followed Moses out of Egypt and through the wilderness. His modern namesake lived up to the same teachings and followed the Christ in his daily life, whether as a son, companion, husband, citizen, or public official. His was a life of service. He believed in the Golden Rule and practiced it in his contact with mankind. He believed in "doing noble things, not dreaming them all day long, and so make life, death, and that vast forever one grand sweet song."

The best evidence of a man's character is found in the hearts of his neighbors. We read that the editors, reporters and printers with whom President Harding had worked for so many years in the newspaper business, wrote and set up the story of his life with tears streaming down their cheeks. They knew the man for what he really was.

"God give us men"—more men like Harding to place in our public offices.

And now, while we mourn for our departed chief, our prayers and sympathies go out in full measure to the brave little woman whose life partner has

"Come to that land upon whose peaceful shore
There rests no shadow, falls no pain,
Where those who meet shall part no more,
And those long parted shall meet again."

Knitted Neckchief Makes Most Charming Accessory

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

One of the delights of this season is the livened by a forceful dash of color.

It does not take much of an imagination to sense the decorative charm of a neckerchief knitted of fiber silk, the major color being burnt orange with diagonal paisley stripes done in green, orchid, purple, blue, yellow, white and black. The culminating beauty touch is attained in the deep fringe which displays the multi-colors of the paisley design.

There are many types of these knitted "shawlettes" and they all make color their outstanding feature. Brilliant Italian shades, bold gypsy colors add charm to the idea, in this way a somber costume is enlivened by a forceful dash of color. We are only just beginning to explore what a fund of lovely ideas

These beautiful knitted novelties rank not in the commonplace, for they are displayed only by the most exclusive shops. In their coloring they take for inspiration not only nature's tints, but Spanish, Indian and Ukrainian peasant designs are reflected.

Now that autumn is nearing, one notes evidences of handsome knitted neckwear modes in the way of fiber silk scarfs plaided in real Scotch design and coloring.

Colonel Guy D. Goff Sees Danger Similar To Russia's Unless Unions Remain Organized On Trade Lines

COL. GUY D. GOFF

A despotism of the proletariat, enforced by a militant minority upon the United States, was forecast by Colonel Guy D. Goff, former general counsel to the United States Shipping Board and until recently Assistant Attorney General, in an address to the National Coal Association. Colonel Goff declared that an attempt is being made to change the form of American labor organizations from trade unions into industrial unions as an opening wedge toward compelling the majority in America to accept the doctrine of communism.

"It is not proposed to convert a majority of the people of this country to the principles of communism because it is recognized by communists that the majority will not accept such a doctrine. It is proposed to organize a militant minority to compel the majority to accept such a change," Colonel Goff asserted.

Organization of the workers in the essential industries of the nation, each industrial union governed by its own committee and its own officers, and the creation of a single inter-industrial union, so that at the command of a single central committee all the workers in essential industries would be compelled to lay down their tools and by the coercive power of a general strike compel a majority to submit to the dictates of the minority. Colonel Goff asserted was the object of insidious propaganda now being put out.

"This is not theoretical," Colonel Goff continued, "for agitation of this kind is being daily carried on in all of our essential industries and in some of the process of reorganization along these lines has already been accomplished. It was early recognized that the concentration of control of capital and rule by monopolies was destructive of personal liberty. It must now be recognized that the centralized control over large masses of workers in essential industries will lay the foundation for despotism."

"Many of the conservative leaders of organized labor recognize this condition and are doing their utmost to prevent its fulfillment. It is essential that employers and men of business shall also recognize this movement and employ their energies to prevent its progress if they hope to preserve the spirit of liberty which has formed the basis of American institutions."

Ezra Wilson's barn was struck by lightning last week while he was inside. He had both legs fractured and can hardly walk. The barn is in terrible shape and will have to be repaired.

LONG STANDING CASE OF INDIGESTION RELIEVED BY DR. THACHER'S LIVER & BLOOD SYRUP.

The widespread interest in Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup, is shown in the following letter from D. O. Mickle, proprietor of Mickle's Grocery, of Wichita Falls, Texas, who writes:

"One of my customers, Mrs. Whittington, of this place, says she had indigestion for five years. She has been taking Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup and says she is now sound and well."

It is such statements as the above coming from people in widely separated places, that confirm the experience of so many others as to the remarkable efficiency of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup in relieving indigestion and other troubles that afflict humanity.

Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup is sold by the Mexia Drug Company, and if the first bottle does not benefit you the purchase price will be refunded.

You are hereby commanded to summon G. F. Lindsey by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 77th Judicial District; but if there be no newspaper published in said Judicial District, then in a newspaper published in the nearest District to said 77th Judicial District, to appear at a regular term of the Justice's Court of Precinct No. 4, Limestone County, Texas, to be held at the town of Mexia, in said Limestone County, on the 11th day of September, 1933, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 10th day of July, 1933, docketed and numbered on the docket of said Court No. 726, wherein W. D. Pittman, a resident of Limestone County, Texas, is plaintiff and G. F. Lindsey, a non-resident of the State of Texas, is defendant, plaintiff's demand being for the sum of $187.55, due upon claim for breach of warranty. Plaintiff avers that for a valuable consideration defendant, on the 30th day of May, A. D. 1932, conveyed to him, by deed of said date, a certain lot or parcel of land, situated in the town of Mexia, Limestone County, Texas, being Lot No. 7, in Block No. 23, of said town, and by said deed of conveyance defendant bound himself, his heirs, executors and administrators to warrant and forever defend, all and singular, the said premises unto this plaintiff, his heirs, and assigns, against every person whomsoever lawfully claiming or to claim the same or any part thereof. That after purchasing said land and after defendant had so bound himself, plaintiff discovered for the first time that said land was incumbered with a lien for taxes due the State of Texas, and the county of Limestone in the sum of $75.05, including taxes, penalties and interest, and with a lien for taxes due the city of Mexia, a municipal corporation, in the sum of $37.50, and with a lien for taxes due the independent school district of Mexia in the sum of $25.00, aggregating the sum of $137.55, which sums plaintiff was compelled to pay, to prevent the enforcement of said liens, and the loss of his said land, which plaintiff paid on the 4th day of June, A. D. 1933, to his damage in the sum of $187.55; that by reason of the premises defendant became liable, and promised to pay plaintiff the said aggregate sum of money, which defendant has failed and refused and still fails and refuses to do. Plaintiff prays judgment for his damages, with interest thereon from the 4th day of June A. D. 1933, at the rate of 6% per annum, for costs of suit, general and special relief. Plaintiff further alleges that though defendant is a non-resident of the State of Texas, he has effects belonging to him in this State.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Witness my signature as Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 4, Limestone County, Texas.

Given under my official signature, at office in Mexia, Texas, this 26th day of July, 1933.
